The Great Silver Question.

on February 13, 1878, in discussing the demonetization of silver, said: "So that I say that beyond the possibility of a doubt (and there is no disputing it, that bill which demonetized silver, as it passed, never was discussed, and that the chairman of the committee who reported it, who offered the substitute, said to Mr. Holman, when inquired of, that it did not affect the coinage in any way whatever."

Senator Howe, in a speech deliver ed in the Senate on February 5, 1878.

"Mr. Presi lent, I do not regard the demonetization of silver as an attempt to wrench from the people more than they agreed to pay That is not the crime of with guilt compared with which the robbery of two hundred millions is venial." Mr. Thurman said:

"I can not say what took place in the House but I know, when the bill was pending in the Senate, we thought it was samply a bill to a single man in the Senate, 1 think, unless a member of the committee from which the bill come, who had the slightest idea that it was even a squint toward demonetization."

President Grent who President Grant who signed the law was also evidently ignorant of the fact that it demonetized silver. for eight months after the passage of the bill he wrote a letter to Mr. Cowdrey, from which the following extract is taken: "The panic has brought greenbacks about to a par with silver. I wonder that silver is not already coming into the market to s ip hot arreany coming into the market to sip-ply the deficiency in the circulating medium. THE POINT OF VIEW.

That Occur From Condition Which Exist. Justice Field, of the United States Supreme court, says: It is a fundamental principle of our history "that taxation and representation should And he cites European history in sustainment of this view. What nonsense! Do the women who pay taxes get representation? That they should, is unquestionable. That they do not, is the fact. The United States Supreme court decision on the income tax displays a large want of capacity to deal with The court has put the whole question in great confusion; now there is no certainty that even this same court will henceforth declare any part of the law constitutional. Consequently rich people may conevery walk of life find in it just what

The summary of the Supreme court decision is as follows: Incomes from rents are exempt. Incomes from State and municipal onds are exempt, Incomes derived from other sources may or may not be exempt, the court does not decide which. But the government will go on collecting in the doubtful cases. All this muddle is bad for the court, its reputation, and the uncertainty among the people arising out of it. It is said by the wise men, most of whom never farmed in their lives, that overproduction is the farmer trouble. Now we understand by this we've worked so hard and faithfully, and made so much, that it has been to our disadvantage, Can such be possible?-Vigilant. So the income tax is unconstitu tional in part, and prob bly in whole. And so is every other fax, law or regulation of any sort unfavorably affecting capital when passed upon by a Democratic or Republican jadge.-New York Populist

Benjamin Franklin was a true philesopher. His thoughts took hold of the root and reason of things 'The greatest revolution." he said. which the world has ever known will take place when men undertake to apply the principles of christianity to human government." The beginning of that revolution is now at hand .- Republican.

"After the Bible the study of mankind is the most important and the most instructive pursuit for the ambassador of Christ. The aim of his ministry is to enlighten and con-vince, to persuade and convert his fellow beings, to elevate them to a higher plane of moral rectitude."-
